SHAKING APPARATUS FOR PHAGOCYTOSIS, Boerner-Mudd. For use in the measurement of the phagocytic power of whole blood or of plasma-leukocyte and serum-leukocyte mixtures. See Fred Boerner and Stuart Mudd, "Determination of the Phagocytic Power of Whole Blood or Plasma-Leukocyte Mixtures for Clinical or Experimental Purposes," The American Journal of the Medical Sciences, Vol. 189, No. 1 (January, 1935), p. 22.

Consisting of a polished copper water bath containing a movable test tube rack, also of polished copper, universal motor, and gas micro burner with attached stopcock, mounted on baseboard with switch and necessary wiring connections. Motor is geared to swing the movable test tube rack to and fro approximately 280 times per minute.

Rack takes sixteen tubes  $85 \times 15$  mm. By means of the gas burner with stopcock for adjustment of the gas flow, a temperature of approximately  $37^{\circ}\text{C}$  can be maintained in the water bath. Clips are provided within the bath for conveniently holding a suitable thermometer in position.
